

Abstract of the Disclosure

A piece of seating and/or reclining furniture for the outside, includes at least one cover and a framework having at least two struts. The at least one cover extends or can extend at least in some sections between the at least two struts. The piece of seating and/or reclining furniture is designed in such a manner that the at least two struts can be moved relative to one another at least in some sections and can be fixed relative to one another at least in a tensioned position of the cover.